I made this blend because It reminds me of when I had to wake up early to go to school and how everything would be sort of half lit and my kitchen had lights under the cabinets and I've always loved that look. Hope you all like. The other pictures are just the outside of the apartment to show off the balcony. and other details. PLEASE NOTE THAT THE TEXTURES ARE NOT INCLUDED LINK PROVIDED BELLOW FOR WHERE TO FIND THEM.

This is a wonderful scene. The items and worktops in the kitchen are all believable and the exterior is particularly realistic. That wood or whatever is very new and clean :-) I like the effect. I too have memories of early mornings. We had candles in home made holders - 3 nails driven through a tin lid which was then nailed on to a square of red painted wood. The candle would be pushed between the nails to be held firmly and there was some sort of handle. I've always remembered those, plus the paraffin heaters. Reply | Report | Edited September 15, 2013

Thank you I'm glad you like it. I now wake up way later and miss that morning feeling...kinda:) Report | Written September 15, 2013 oldtimer I love this kind of scenes. What I'd add is something that is present everywhere: dirt. Yes, a subtle stain at the place where floor joins the walls, also at the lowest part of the cabinets...you know at those hidden locations difficult to be clean. This is a lesson I received time ago when starting modeling with Blender. This will enhance your work that, by the way, is very good. Regards. Reply | Report | Edited September 15, 2013 ya I need to work on those little details I should probably get better at texturing to achieve that. I love the idea of the dirt in the corners I mite even put some lint or dust balls now that you got me thinking about fine details thank you very much and glad you like my blend it means a lot coming from someone with amazing blends like yourself. FayZee The place where one always finds grime is around light switches and just below chest height above the handles on doors. Report | Edited September 16, 2013

matthewinglis This is SO good! This is defiantly getting liked by me.

1. unpack the project file then pack it back up again.

2. try making a new project file, then append all files into it, then pack it back up. just trying to help, not sure if you needed any but just incase ^_^

Kless

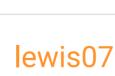

but I can't give out the textures sorry. Report | Written December 12, 2013

Ok I think I fixed the pink tell me if its fixed for you. :)

There is suppose to be no textures since most of them came from cgtextures, I put links
